It is a pretty courtesy and one that you owe to your guests to see that their names appear in the paper. Should they be making a visit here and pick up the paper and see the names of many other visitors in the village, while their own names are omitted, they would feel just a little bit slighted. There is no guarantee that your visitors names will appear in the local columns of the paper unless you tell us about it, although we try hard not to overlook anyone. All such acts as giving us the names of your visitors, as well as other items, are duly appreciated by the editor.

THE RAILWAY BILL

U. S. Senate to Kill The President's Railway Rate Bill

MAGNATES BALK PRESIDENT'S PLANS

Public Ownership of Railroads Will Probably be the Final Outcome of the Present Hard Struggle

One fact looms larger on the railroad horizon at this time than any other, and it is that there will be no compromise between the President and the railway world looking toward legislation which both can consistently accept. It will be a fight to a finish--before the Senate.

The railroads, from present indications, will win, defeating the plan of the president to have the interstate commerce commission clothed with power to name a rate and have it immediately go into effect.

Stories have appeared in the newspapers of late suggesting that there might be a compromise. Several of these stories have even gone so far as to say that presidents Cassatt and Baer have been selected to notify the President of the compromise offer and urge him to accept it. All such stories, however, are negated by the simple fact that the President has had no word that any such plan was on foot, and, further, that it is not his intention to compromise what he regards as a moral issue.

Reduced to the lowest terms, the railway issue for months has presented but one point of difference between the President and the railway managers. Everything excepting, this single point the railways have long been ready to concede. This point is the crux of the entire situation. It involves the going into effect of a "new rate named by the commission."

The President insists that this point is essential to any legislation that will be at all satisfactory. On this point, of all others, he feels that he could not yield.

The railroads also regard this as the crux of the situation. The bill around which the railroad interests of the Senate will finally rally, will contain everything the President demands save this thing only. The President's bill will contain this point.

It is the purpose of the railroads to defeat the president's bill. Already a count of noses has been taken, and on that count the prediction is made by railway experts that the bill can be defeated. This prediction is made with so much confidence as to carry conviction in many disinterested quarters. But after the President's bill has been defeated--then, what?

This question has also been considered in railway circles, and an answer that is entirely satisfactory has been reached.

It is believed by the great corporate powers now opposing the president that the defeat of the president's plan in congress this winter, and again in the short session of a year hence, will very probably precipitate a presidential struggle in 1908 with government ownership of railways as perhaps the chief issue. The votes taken this year in Chicago and New York are fingerboards pointing in that direction, and the refusal of the senate to comply with the president's request would no doubt give that issue such momentum as to make it national in scope.

Bryan is now abroad studying municipal ownership, and the chances are very great that the democratic party in 1908 will be committed to some government ownership issue which he will state upon his return.

The railroads, however, believe the bulk of the people of the country may always be depended on to support a moderately conservative platform as against one that is ultra radical.

On Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of Rev. Wm. C. Cleworth at Wilmette, Ill., occurred a quiet little wedding, the contracting parties being Charles Alvers and Miss Carrie Hiseord, both of this place. The bride is the youngest daughter of Egbert Hiseord who resides north of town, and is a well known and popular young lady in this vicinity. The groom is a young man of sterling quality and has a trusty position in the employ of Chase Webb, and both have a large circle of friends who wish them happiness and prosperity through life.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvers will make their future home at this place, and after a short honeymoon will be at home to their many friends. Cigars are up at Chase Webb's.

Exchange Screenings.

A woman who resides south of Libertyville was severely burned on Saturday by the boiling over of a wash boiler that contained gasoline among the other cleaning ingredients. She will recover.

A crowd of Waukegan city officials left for Zion City Saturday afternoon. On record in the county recorder's office is a trust deed by which through Chas. Whitney John Alexander Dowie raised $25,000.

A week from last Saturday night the Masonic bodies celebrate past master's night at the Masonic Temple. This means that the past masters are to perform all the work of the order for the evening.

The only geyser in Lake county is the mineral well sunk by H. N. Chamberlain, a Chicago horseman, just east of the town of Libertyville between the electric road and the St. Paul tracks. The well is 200 feet deep and from a pipe three inches in diameter there streams perpetually a fountain of sparkling water from five to eight feet in height. There is a rhythmic and regular pulse to the gushing water, every other stream being higher than the preceding one.

Great sorrow is felt in the village of Wilmet on account of the death of Willie Schlar, the son of Michael Schlar, the well known Wilmet blacksmith. The boy who is not yet fourteen years of age, has been ill for some time with tuberculosis of the bone and he only recently returned from a Chicago hospital. In recent months young Schlar has been at work in the office of the Wilmet Apptator and his work attracted wide attention among the people of that neighborhood. The funeral of the boy was held from St. Alphonsus church at New Munster.

It is not generally known that the original Mrs. Tom Thumb, now the Countess Magri, is living. She resides in Middleboro, Mass., where she was born. It was in 1882 that Barnum first brought her out, and at one time General Tom Thumb and his wife were getting a salary of $3,000 a day. The wonderful midget is sixty-three years old, no "Lilliputian" ever having reached this age before. In her day she has traveled the globe over, and met all the crowned heads of the world. Mr. Tom Thumb died in 1882, his widow later marrying Count Magri.

Few merchants are aware of a new law which went into effect July 1. One merchant in a nearby city is already grieving on account of his ignorance of the law to the extent of a heavy fine that was imposed on him. Heretofore it had been customary to scratch the stamp of a cigar box and if he so desired give it away or do with it as he should see fit so long as the stamp was destroyed. But this is no longer the case. The merchant or dealer must destroy the box immediately after the cigars are gone. He must at once remove the box from the case and break it up. The law may sound queer, but be sure it is heeded or you will get caught before you know it.

How Can You Help Mail Carriers?

Patrons along the rural mail routes will do a great favor to the mail carriers if they will observe a few little things to make the life of the carrier a bit more pleasant during the coming cold weather.

Buy a few stamps or stamped envelopes and have your letters already for the carrier when he comes along after them. Twenty-five cents spent in this way will not only bring joy to the carrier but it will also make your mind rest easier in knowing that you have done the faithful carrier a nice favor.

While they are ready to do all they can to accommodate the patrons they do not like to fumble around in the box for pennies when their fingers are numb and cold, and besides the postoffice department does not require them to do it. Their lot is not any too pleasant during the winter months and any little favors done them in this line are greatly appreciated.

Advancement in India.

India has for the first time given recognition to women as aids to good government by appointing Mrs. Ramabai Ranade, widow of the late Justice Ranade, a visitor to Yerrowda central jail.

Foxy George Ade.

George Ade says he has no use for matrimony. But perhaps this is merely intended as a challenge for the girls to get busy. George is foxy.

Annual Millburn Mutual Insurance Assessment.

The Directors of the Millburn Mutual Insurance Company have levied an assessment for 1905, of two dollars ($2.00) on each one thousand dollars insured to pay the losses of $5,462.54, that have occurred during the year.

Assessments will be due and called for in this city.

WEEK'S NEWS RECORD

The mill of the West Branch Milling Company was destroyed by fire at Wilhamsport, Pa. Loss, $45,000; insurance, $32,000. The fire is believed to have been caused by tramps. The plant of the Trout Run Acid Company at Trout Run, near there, was also destroyed by fire.

Rev. Francis H. Sinclair, pastor of 88. Peter and Paul's Roman Catholic church in Rochester, N. Y., registered a protest against race suicide by causing to be draped in mourning the baptismal font in his church. He was prompted to this act because for six weeks not one infant has received the sacrament of baptism in his church.

Theodore Gross of Chicago, who was arrested in South Bend after a chase to and from the old world covering three years, is accused by his former partner, Richard Polson, of defrauding him out of $50,000. In 1900 Gross received $100,000 for promoting the sale of a Colorado mine, but it is alleged, failed to divide with his partner.

The National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, went on record in Atlantic City, N. J., in favor of temperance and the curtailing of saloons, declaring "that they should be abolished until they are abolished." A resolution on the subject says: "Every community should be empowered by law to vote every saloon from its midst or its borders."

The body of a dead man, who, from papers found on his person, is believed to have been L. R. Sutz Wedel of Leonard, N. D., was found in a swamp near McHugh, Minn. The authorities have arrested at Frazee a woman named Nell Athenham, who, with a male companion, is known to have been in the dead man's company. It is believed that Wedel was murdered for his money while he slept.

Benjamin Brunley, a convict at the Missouri penitentiary, tried to imitate Jean Valjean's escape from prison, but having no coffin at hand, he substituted a shoe crate, which he had arranged so that he could open it from the inside. The attempt would have been successful had not the driver placed the crate in the wagon in such a way that the convict stood on his head. He stood the suffering as long as possible, but finally cried out, and was taken back and locked in his cell.

Basing its action upon the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in declaring invalid the Illinois anti-trust law because it exempted agriculturists and stock raisers from its operations, the Supreme Court of Montana declared unconstitutional that State's anti-trust law. The Montana law also exempted agriculturists, as well as horticulturists, and was held to be class legislation. This decision was reached in an attempt to prosecute the Armour, Swift, Cudahy and Hammond packing companies for alleged conspiracy to control the price of beef.

Inquiry into the death of Edward Rothhaupt and Elizabeth Kuschul was made in Chicago. After threatening many times to kill the girl's entire family if she persisted in disengaging his love, Rothhaupt met Miss Kuschul as she stepped from a car and stabbed her several times in the back. He then ran toward the Kuschul house, crying that he would bring death to all the family. The murderer was pursued by a crowd of men and boys, but before they could reach him he placed a revolver, which he was carrying, in his mouth and died. Rothhaupt was a mechanic.

NEWS NUGGETS.

Congress will be petitioned to help build a system of canals shortening the Red river and reclaiming 500,000 acres of Louisiana land.

Mayor Dunne of Chicago, in a letter to a Boston magazine, charges that the banks, newspapers and Council majority of Chicago are in league to defeat municipal ownership and predicts that they will fail.

The throne of Norway was tendered formally to Prince Charles of Denmark on Monday by a deputation of members of the Norwegian Parliament and was accepted by King Christian in behalf of his grandson.

The body of an unidentified man, 20 years old, was found in a slough near McHugh, Minn. Papers in the dead man's pockets were covered with blood, indicating that the young man was murdered for his money.

The municipality of Berlin, Germany, has voted to build an underground railroad from the north to the south of the city. The line, which will cost about $13,750,000, will be electrical and will be operated by the city.

The premature explosion of a blast in the Herman quarry in St. Louis County, Missouri, caused the death of Peter White and John Foley and serious injury of the foreman, John Birmingham, and William Speckers.

Charles Boss, Jr., aged 24 years, grandson of Christian Boss, the millionaire brewer of Cincinnati, committed suicide at his home there by shooting himself in the heart. He left a note in which he said his health was the cause.

Evidence showing that Henry Miller and Augustus Olinde, who left Los Angeles last year on an expedition to Tiburon Island in the Gulf of California, were killed and eaten by a tribe of cannibals on the island has been received.

The plant of the Steelton Electric Light Company in Steelton, Pa., has been destroyed by fire, involving a loss of $90,000, on which there was no insurance. The fire is believed to have originated from a spark from a torch in the frame storehouse.

Fire in Owatonna, Minn., destroyed the three-story brick building occupied by Farrot & Smith, hardware dealers, causing a loss estimated at $50,000. A quantity of powder in the stock of the hardware firm exploded, causing a rapid spread of the fire and making efforts to extinguish it almost futile.

RUSSIAN STRIKERS APPEAL TO TROOPS TO JOIN REVOLT.

The workmen's organization representing the Russian strikers has addressed the following appeal to the soldiers and sailors:

Comrades and Brothers: For a long time we have misunderstood each other. Your officers taught you to regard us as enemies of the fatherland and as criminals whom you should shoot, beat with your whips and butcher with your bayonets.

Our struggle for the people's freedom and the people's well-being has been depicted to you as a revolution against the fatherland which you are obliged to suppress. Many of you, believing this, have shot your own brothers, filling the streets of our towns with blood.

The case is now altered. The eyes of many of the soldiers and sailors have been opened. They understand that all of us are brothers and that we are sons of the same nations whose common enemies are your commanders and those in power. They understand that the liberty of the people is their own liberty and the good of the people their own good.

The men of the Black Sea fleet at Kronstadt stood against their commanders and signified that they wanted to lead the lives of men, that they wanted liberty, and they associated themselves with the cause of the people. A hundred sailors at Kronstadt have been handed over to a court martial and today or tomorrow may be executed. Knowing this, we workmen of St. Petersburg struck, demanding the release of our soldier and sailor brothers and the abolition of courts martial and the death penalty.

Is it possible that you, soldiers and sailors, will not arise and help your brothers at Kronstadt? Is it possible that you will remain hand in hand with the murderers of your brothers at Kronstadt?

We workmen say, "The cause of the soldier and the sailor is our cause," and so we have gone out on strike. You must say everywhere, "The cause of the workmen is our cause, and the struggle of the workmen our struggle," and you must associate yourselves with the struggling people. You must strike and refuse to perform the duties imposed on you. Do not listen to the word of command calling upon you to put down the workmen's movement. Let not one shot be fired by you against the people.

Down with your bloodthirsty commanders! Long live a free government and a free people!

NUDE MEN ROUTED BY FIRE.

Thirty-nine lives lost and thirty-two lodgers badly burned. Thirty-nine men lost their lives and thirty-two others were burned severely in a fire which broke out early Sunday morning in a municipal lodging house in Glasgow.

The building was occupied by 330 men, most of them laborers, all belonging to the poorest classes. The flames first were noticed on the fourth floor about 6 o'clock, and in the panic which followed many fell downstairs or jumped from windows. It is the custom of these lodgers to sleep nude, and when the firemen arrived, almost immediately an extraordinary scene was created by a procession of naked men rushing out of the entrance. Against their frantic efforts to escape the fire fighters actually had to fight for admission.

Reaching the upper floors, the firemen found that the narrow passages were being congested with men who had dropped to the floors overcome with smoke. The fire, however, was confined to the fourth floor, and as soon as the firemen were able to get to work it was speedily extinguished.

The march of the nude survivors to the police station was a fantastic one. Some had snatched the covers of the beds and others their trousers, while many wore nothing. The local authorities had to be called upon to supply the men with clothing and warm meals.

Owing to their migratory habits and the absence of permanent homes, many of the dead never will be identified. The identification of others is rendered difficult by the absence of clothing.

Sir Mortimer Durand, British minister to this country, is still in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, having fallen in love with the beauties of that section.

The Duke of Argyll, King Edward's brother-in-law, has enlarged his literary scope by writing a book of nonsense verse in the form of a long ballad, the first work, "The United States After the War," brought him to the notice of American readers.

Charles was one of the names given the infant son of the prince and princess of Wales at the recent christening. The young prince is the first of royal blood to bear the name since "Bonnie Prince Charlie."

Tamagno, the great Italian tenor, who died recently, was noted at one time for his penuriousness, but when he returned to Varese, Italy, he changed. He built a villa, which for artistic beauty has few equals anywhere, and entertained lavishly. He finally gave the villa to his only daughter as a wedding present.

100 PERISH AT SEA.

BRITISH CROSS-CHANNEL BOAT GOES DOWN.

Striking Blinding Snowstorm, Vessel Misses Tide and Goes on Rocks—Sudden Crash Allows the Sleeping Victims No Escape.

At least 100 persons were drowned when the British cross-channel steamer Hilda of the Southwestern Railway Company's line was wrecked Sunday off St. Malo, on the north coast of France. So far only six survivors have been reported and it is believed that all the others on board were lost. It is understood that there were about twenty first-class passengers, including several English people. The rescued were picked up in an open boat by the steamer Ada of the Southwestern line, outward bound from St. Malo, near the scene of the wreck.

The Hilda left Southampton for St. Malo Friday night. There were about eighty passengers, mostly French on board, and the crew numbered twenty-six.

The passage was delayed greatly by a dense fog in the English channel and when near St. Malo the steamer ran into a severe snowstorm, apparently missing her course. While the captain was seeking the entrance to the port the steamer ran on the rocks off Jardin lighthouse, three miles from St. Malo, and at once went to the bottom.

A telegram from St. Servan, adjoining St. Malo, gives a few available particulars. It says the Hilda was near St. Malo Saturday morning and groped about in the snow all day, going on the rocks in the roadstead at 4 o'clock.

—Denver Post.

Sunday morning, having missed the tide, owing to the bad weather.

Nearly all the people on board were asleep at the time. Two boats were lowered, one of which was picked up by the Ada, and the second was found empty at St. Cast, where thirteen bodies were washed ashore.

Seven bodies wearing life belts were stranded off the village of St. Cast. The coast near St. Malo is covered with wreckage and some cattle.

Two-thirds of the Hilda's passengers were French farmers returning to France with heavy sums in gold from the sale of their yearly harvest of onions and potatoes. The others were English families who were going to pass the winter at Dinard. The wreck lies on the beach three miles off St. Malo, showing only her main mast and forecabin.

SIXTEEN MILLIONS NEEDED.

Estimate by War Department for Presentation to Congress.

An estimate of $16,000,000 for continuing work on the Panama canal has been sent to the Treasury Department from the War Department to be sent to Congress.

The estimate of $16,000,000 is for expenditure up to and including the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907. A part of this money will be necessary at once, and an emergency appropriation will be asked as soon as Congress convenes so that the work may proceed. It is stated at the offices of the commission that unless money is provided as soon as Congress convenes all work must cease. The estimate is made without regard to the proposal to issue bonds.

Advocates of a lock canal have not given up their plan, notwithstanding the fact that the consulting engineers have decided in favor of a sea level canal. It is pointed out that the final decision rests with the President, and that the matter of time and expense will be considered carefully by him. It is known also that the President is very anxious to have the work completed at an early date, and for that reason he is believed to favor a lock canal.

A strong minority report in favor of a lock canal will be made by the five engineers who disagreed with the majority.

News of Minor Note.

Ash H. Edwards, a negro, was probably fatally beaten by a crowd in Brooklyn for stabbing a man.

Thomas A. Stoddard, aged 70, manager of the St. Louis clearing house, died, after a long illness.

ACCEPTS CROWN OF NORWAY.

Norwegian Delegation Tendered Sovereignty to Prince Charles.

The throne of Norway was formally tendered to Prince Charles of Denmark Monday morning by a deputation of members of the Norwegian parliament and was accepted by King Christian in behalf of his grandson. The brief ceremony in the palace recalled the similar event in 1803, when the throne of Greece was presented to Prince George of Denmark.

The function lasted only twenty minutes, but the scene was brilliant.

The close of the ceremony was signaled by the firing of a royal salute. An enormous crowd gathered in front of the palace and gave a rousing reception to the new king and queen of Norway as they left the palace in a gilded state chariot.

He Had to Watch Them.

The late George M. Stearns, the noted Massachusetts criminal lawyer, was a great lover of poker. He was also very fastidious in his personal habits and immaculate in his dress.

One night he was out until a late hour with a convivial party, indulging in his favorite amusement. The next morning at the breakfast table his wife, observing with surprise his untidy appearance, remarked:

"George, can't you spit without soiling your shirt bosom?"

"George" looked at her a moment, and then remarked solemnly: "Mary, if you had been in the party I was last night, you wouldn't have turned your head to spit."

Winthrop, Cal., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—A plain and straightforward story is always the most convincing. And that is what has impressed us most in reading the testimonials in regard to Dodd's Kidney Pills. The experience told by Davis Lewis of this place bears the ring and stamp of truth upon it. He says:

"I was troubled for six months with dull, heavy pains in the small of my back; sometimes it passed into my stomach, at other times up between my shoulders. When it was in my stomach I was doubled up, and hardly knew what to do for the pain. I was advised to take all kinds of remedies, and did so, but without getting any relief. Then some one told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got a box and began taking them. The first few doses gave me relief; by the time I had finished them all the pain was gone and I have been well ever since."

THE TOWER OF BABEL.

History Leaves No Data by Which to Estimate Its Height.

The exact date of the building of "Nimrod's Folly," as the Chaldeans say in alluding to the Scriptural tower of Babel (the Armenians speak of it as the Tower of the Confusion of Tongues) or the height to which it penetrated the rarefied atmosphere of the oriental plains will perhaps never be known. The date of the laying of the foundation of the famous structure is usually set at 2,257 years before Christ, or in the year of the flood 101.

The expression of the sacred historian that its top was to "reach unto heaven" is now generally set down as a strong Hebrew phrase denoting a very lofty tower, but not necessarily meaning that one would reach to the abiding place of the Lord and His hosts. Proof that this is probable may be found in several places in the holy writ. The walls of the cities of Canaan are described by Moses in similar phraseology. The spies sent out by him returned and reported that the cities of that country were great and were "walled up to heaven." See Deuteronomy 1:28, 31. There is a Jewish legend in the Talmud which tells us that God did not put a stop to the building of the tower until after it had reached a height of 10,000 fathoms, which is equal to nearly twelve English miles.

The sacred historians have not in a single instance left data upon which we can base a calculation of its exact height and general dimensions, and it is because of this omission that the imaginative orientals and other ancient writers have given such fabulous and extravagant traditions concerning it. Even St. Jerome alleges from the testimony of eyewitnesses who claim to have seen and examined the ruins of the skyscraping shaft that in his day (born 345 A. D.) it was over four miles high. While considering these untenable notions it may not be out of place to mention that other fanciful writers make its height range all the way from a single furlong to 5,000 miles in height.—Pittsburg Press.

PASSING OF PORRIDGE.

Makes Way for the Better Food of a Better Day.

"Porridge is no longer used for breakfast in my home," writes a loyal Briton from Huntsville, Ont. This was an admission of no small significance to one "brought up" on the time-honored stand-by.

"One month ago," she continues, "I bought a package of Grape-Nuts food for my husband, who had been an invalid for over a year. He had passed through a severe attack of pneumonia and a gripe combined, and was left in a very bad condition when they passed away."

"I tried everything for his benefit, but nothing seemed to do him any good. Month followed month and he still remained as weak as ever. I was almost discouraged about him when I got the Grape-Nuts, but the result has compensated me for my anxiety."

"In the one month that he has eaten Grape-Nuts he has gained 10 pounds in weight, his strength is rapidly returning to him, and he feels like a new man. Now we all eat Grape-Nuts food, and are the better for it. Our little 5-year-old boy, who used to suffer pains in the stomach after eating the old-fashioned porridge, has no more trouble since he began to use Grape-Nuts, and I have no more doctor's bills to pay for him."

"We use Grape-Nuts with only sweet cream, and find it the most tasty dish in our bill of fare."

"Last Monday I ate 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast, nothing else, then set to work and got my morning's work done by 9 o'clock, and felt less tired, much stronger, than if I had made my breakfast on meat, potatoes, etc., as I used to. I wouldn't be without Grape-Nuts in the house for any money." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. There's a reason.

Kansas Lazy Man.

The laziest man in Kansas was sitting under a tree puffing his corn-cob. "Why don't you start cutting down your corn?" interrogated the stranger on the slate-colored mule.

"Too much trouble, pard," drawled the lazy man. "I'm waiting for a storm to come and blow it down."

"Well, why don't you chop up some wood?"

"What's the use? Got a horseshoe stuck in the woodpile so the lightning will strike it and make kindling wood out of it all in a second."

"Then why don't you prepare dinner?"

"Too tired. Wait till a cyclone comes along and blows all the feathers off the chickens, so I won't have to bother picking them."

The Doctor's Wife

BY MISS M. E. BRADDON

"A criminal case?"
"Yes. I was in town on business a year or two ago, to renew some leases and look into a whole batch of tiresome business matters which my lawyer insisted upon my attending to in my own proper person, very much to my annoyance. I dropped into the United Stock Bank. While I was talking to one of the clerks at the counter a man came in and stood close to my elbow while he handed in a check. I knew it came very close upon the hundred—received the money and went out. He looked like a groom out of livery. I left the bank almost immediately after him, and as he turned into a little alley I followed a few paces behind him. At the bottom of the alley my friend the groom was met by a big, black-whiskered man who seemed to have been waiting for him, for he caught him suddenly by the arm and said: 'Well, did they do it?' 'Yes,' the other man answered, and began fumbling in his pockets, making a chinking sound as he did so. 'You needn't say a word to me, so precious sharp,' he said, rather sulkily; 'I wasn't going to bolt with it, was I?' The black-whiskered man had seen me by this time, and he muttered something to his companion which evidently meant that he was to hold his tongue, and then dragged him off without further ceremony. This was all I saw of the groom or the black-whiskered gentleman upon that occasion. I thought their method of cashing a check was rather a queer one; but I thought no more about it until three weeks afterward, when I went into the United Stock Bank again, and was told that the check which had been cashed in my presence was a forgery, one of a series of the most audacious forgeries, perpetrated by a gang whose plans had only just come to light and none of whom had yet been arrested. They've managed to keep themselves in the dark in the most extraordinary manner, the clerk told me; 'the checks are supposed to have been all fabricated by one man, but three or four men have been employed to get hold of the original signatures of our customers, which they have obtained by a complicated system.' Whereupon I told my little story of the black-whiskered gentleman."

Mr. Lansdell paused to take breath, and stole a glance at Isabel. She was pale always—but she was very pale now and was watching him with an eager, breathless expression.

"Silly, romantic little thing," he thought, "to be so intensely absorbed in my story."

"You're getting interesting, Roland," said Gwendoline. "Pray go on."

"The upshot of the matter was that at 8 o'clock that evening a grave little gentleman came to me and cross-questioned me as to what I knew of the man who had cashed the check. 'You think you can recognize this man with the black whiskers?' he said. 'Yes; most decidedly I can.' 'And you'll swear to him, if necessary?' 'With pleasure.' On this the detective departed and came to me the next day, to tell me that he fancied he was on the track of the man he wanted, but he was at a loss for means of identification. He knew, or thought that he knew, who the man was; but he didn't know the man himself from Adam. The next morning I had the supreme pleasure of pointing out my black-whiskered acquaintance. He looked very black, declaring that it was all a mistake, and that it would be easily set right. I let the two go together, very well pleased with my adventure."

"It was not so well pleased, however, when I found that I was wanted as a witness at preliminary examinations, and adjourned examinations, and on and off through a trial that lasted four days and a half; to say nothing of being badgered and brow-beaten by practitioners—who were counsel for the prisoner—and who asked me if it was my friend's whiskers I recognized, or if I had never seen any other whiskers exactly like his? If I should know him without his whiskers? whether any member of my family had been in a lunatic asylum? whether I usually devoted my leisure time to traveling about with detective officers? whether I should be able to recognize an acquaintance I had only seen once in twenty years? what I was short-sighted? would I swear I was not short-sighted? would I be kind enough to read a verse or so from a diamond edition of the works of Thomas Moore? and so on. But question me as they would, the prisoner at the bar—commonly known as Jack the Scribe, alias Jack the Gentleman, alias ever so many other names which I have completely forgotten—was the identical person whom I had seen meet the groom. My evidence was only a single link in a long chain; but I suppose it was eminently damaging to my black-whiskered friend, for when he any two of his associates had received their sentence he turned toward where I was standing, and said:

"I don't bear any grudge against the gentlemen of the jury, and I don't bear any malice against the judge, but when a languid smile mixes himself up in business that doesn't concern him, he deserves to get it hot and strong. If ever I come out of prison alive, I'll kill you!" He shook his fist at me as he said it. There wasn't much in the words, but there was a good deal in the way in which they were spoken. He tried to say more; but the warders got hold of him and held him down, putting and gasping, and with his face of a dull livid white. I saw no more of him; but if he does live to come out of prison, I most firmly believe he will keep his word!"

"Izzy," cried George Gilbert, suddenly, "what's the matter?"
"Alas, the point of Mr. Lansdell's story was lost; for at this moment Isabel tottered and fell slowly backward upon the sward, and all the goldfish leaped away in a panic of terror as the doctor dipped his hat into the marble basin. He splashed the water into his wife's face, and she opened her eyes at last, very slowly, and looked round her."

"Did he say that?" she said, "did he say that?"

CHAPTER XIII.

Mrs. Gilbert recovered very quickly from her fainting fit. She had been frightened by Mr. Lansdell's story, she said, and the heat had made her dizzy. She sat very quietly upon a sofa in the drawing room, with one of the orphans on each side of her, while Brown Molly was being harnessed."

Gwendoline went away with her father, after bidding Mrs. Gilbert rather a cool good-morning. The daughter did not approve of the fainting fit which she was pleased to call Mrs. Gilbert's extraordinary demonstration."

Roland begged Mr. Gilbert to allow him to order a close carriage for his wife's return to Graybridge."

"The gig shall be sent home to you to-night," he said; "I am sure the air and dust will be too much for Mrs. Gilbert."

But Mr. Raymond hereupon interfered, and said the fresh air was just the very thing Isabel wanted, to which opinion the lady herself subscribed. She did not want to cause trouble, she said; so the gig was brought round presently, and George drove his wife away."

She made no endeavor to banish Mr. Lansdell's image from her mind. If she had recognized the need of such an effort, she would have made it perhaps. But she thought that he would go away, and her life would drop back to its dead level, and would be "all the same as if he had not been."

But Mr. Lansdell did not leave Mordred just yet. Only a week after the never-to-be-forgotten day at the Priory, he came again to Thurston's Crag, and found Isabel sitting under the oak with her books in her lap. She started up as he approached her, looking rather frightened and with her face flushed and her eyelids drooping. She had not expected him."

He did not make the slightest allusion to that unfortunate swoon which had spoiled the climax of his story. The one subject, which of all others would have been most embarrassing to the doctor's wife, was scrupulously avoided by Mr. Lansdell. He talked of all manner of things to this ignorant girl, of books and pictures, and foreign cities, and wonderful people, living and dead, of whom she had never heard before."

Out of pure philanthropy, Roland offered to lend her any of the books in his library."

"Yes," he said, "you must ask me for whatever books you would like to read; and by-and-by, when I have left Mordred—"

He paused for a moment involuntarily, for he saw that Isabel gave a little shiver."

"When I leave Mordred at the end of October, you must go to the Priory, and choose the books for yourself. My housekeeper is a very good woman, and she will be pleased to wait upon you." Mr. Lansdell met the doctor's wife beside the water mill, sometimes in the meadow-land, which surged in emerald billows all about Graybridge, and Mordred and Warnecliffe. He met her very often. It was no new thing for Isabel to ramble here and there in that lovely rustic paradise; but it was quite a new thing for Mr. Lansdell to take such a fancy for pedestrian exercise."

Upon the eve of that morning, which was to set all breech-loading rifles popping at innocent red-breasted victims, George Gilbert received a letter from his old friend and comrade, Mr. Sigismund Smith, who wrote in very high spirits and with a great many blots."

"I'm coming down to stop a few days with you, dear old boy," he wrote, "to get the city smoke blown out of my hyacinthines, and to go abroad in the meadows to see the young lambs—are there any young lambs in September, by the bye? I want to see what sort of a matron you have made of Miss Isabel Sleford. Do you remember that day in the garden when you first saw her?"

Mr. Smith arrived at Warnecliffe early next morning. He was in very high spirits, and talked incessantly to Isabel, who had stayed at home to receive him. When there was just a faint chance that Mr. Lansdell might take his morning walk in the direction of Thurston's Crag."

Mrs. Gilbert gave her old friend a very cordial welcome. She was fond of him, as she might have been of some big brother; less objectionable than the ordinary run of big brothers. He had never seen Mr. Sleford's daughter looking so bright and beautiful. A new element had been introduced into her life. She was happy, unutterably happy, on the mystical threshold of a new existence. Not for all the ruby-velvet gowns and diamond coronets in the world would she have sacrificed one accidental half hour on the bridge under Thurston's oak."

She could talk to Sigismund about Mordred, and the master of Mordred. He was not like George, and he would sympathize with her enthusiasm about that earthly paradise."

"Do you know Mordred?" she asked. She felt a kind of pleasure in calling the mansion "Mordred," all short, as he called it."

"I know the village of Mordred well enough," Mr. Smith answered, "and I ought to know the Priory precious well. The last Mr. Lansdell was a client of my father's and when Roland Lansdell was being coached up in the Classics by a private tutor, I used to go up to the Priory and read with him. The governor was very glad to get such a chance for me; but I can't say I intensely appreciated the advantage myself, on summer afternoons, when there was ball playing at Warnecliffe meads."

"You know him—you know Mr. Roland Lansdell when he was a boy?" said Isabel, with a little gasp."

"Certainly did, my dear Izzy; but I don't think there's anything wonderful in that. You couldn't open your eyes much wider if I said I'd known Eugene Aram when he was a boy. I remember Roland Lansdell," continued Mr. Smith, "and a very jolly young fellow he was, a regular young swell. He taught me fencing. Come, Mrs. Gilbert, put on your bonnet and come out for a walk. I suppose there's no chance of our seeing George till dinner time."

"Thurston's Crag is a pretty place; shall we go there?"

"Suppose we do. That's quite a brilliant thought of yours, Izzy. Thurston's Crag is a pretty place, a nice, drowsy, lazy old place, where one always goes to sleep."

Isabel's face was all lighted up with smiles.

"I am so glad you have come to see us, Sigismund," she said.

She was very glad. She might go to Thurston's Crag now as often as she could beguile Sigismund thitherward, and that haunting sense of something wrong would no longer perplex her in the midst of her unutterable joy."

Sigismund handed her across the stile in the last meadow, and then there was only a little bit of smooth verdure between them and the waterfall; but the overhanging branches of the trees intervened, and Isabel could not see yet whether there was any one on the bridge."

But presently the narrow winding path brought them to a break in the foliage. Isabel's heart gave a tremendous bound, and then the color, which had come and gone so often on her face, faded away altogether. He was there; leaning with his back against the big knotted trunk of the oak; and making a picture of himself, with one arm above his head, plucking the oak leaves and dropping them into the water. He looked down at the glancing water and the hurrying leaves with a moody, dissatisfied scowl. Had he been anything less than a hero, one might have thought that he looked sulky."

Mr. Lansdell must have been quite ardently attached to Sigismund in those early days, if one might judge of the past by the present; for he greeted his old acquaintance with absolute effusion, and sketched out quite a little royal progress of rustic enjoyment for Sigismund's week at Graybridge."

"You'll have a picnic," he said. "You remember we talked about a picnic, Mrs. Gilbert. We'll have a picnic at Waverly; there isn't a more delightfully inconspicuous place for a picnic. One can dine on the top of the western tower, in actual danger of one's life. You can write to your Uncle Raymond, Smith, and ask him to join us, with the two nieces, who are really most amiable children. This is Thursday; shall we say Saturday for my picnic? I mean it to be my picnic, you know; a bachelor's picnic. Shall it be Saturday, Mrs. Gilbert?"

Isabel only answered by deepening blushes and a confused murmur of undistinguishable syllables. Sigismund answered for the doctor's wife. Yes, he was sure Saturday would do capital. He further accepted the invitation to dine at Mordred on Sunday, for himself and his host and hostess."

CHAPTER XIV.

Mr. Roland Lansdell did not invite Gwendoline or her father to that bachelor picnic which he was to give at Waverly. He had a kind of instinctive knowledge that General Ruydale's daughter would not relish that sylvan entertainment."

"She'd object to poor Smith, I dare say," Roland said to himself, "with his sporting-cut clothes, and his slang phrases, and his perpetual talk about novels. No, I don't think it would do to invite Gwendoline; she'd be sure to object to Smith."

Mr. Lansdell said this, or thought this, a good many times upon the day before the picnic; but it may be that there was a lurking idea in his mind that Gwendoline might object to the presence of some one other than Mr. Smith in the little assembly that had been planned under Thurston's oak."

When the ponderous old fly from Graybridge drove up a narrow winding lane and emerged upon the green rising ground below the gates of Waverly, Roland was standing under the shadow of the walls with a big bunch of hot-house flowers in his hand. He was in very high spirits; for to-day he had cast care to the winds. Why should he not enjoy this innocent pleasure of a rustic ramble with simple country-bred people and children?"

Charles Raymond and the orphans had arrived, and they all came forward together to welcome Isabel and her companions. Mr. Raymond had always been very kind to his niece's governess, but he seemed especially kind to her to-day. He interposed himself between Roland and the door of the fly, and assisted Isabel to alight. He slipped her hand under his arm with a pleasant friendliness of manner."

Disguised Compliment.

They were sitting on the piazza in the autumnal twilight."

"George," she gushed, in one of those nonsensical ways that girls have, "what kind of a girl do you think I am, anyway?"

"Well," drawled George as he lit a cork-tipped cigarette, "you remind me of a Chinese."

A wall of glaciers could not have chilled the atmosphere more."

"Sir," she demanded in a voice that froze the air, "how dare you insult me with such a remark as that?"

The young man smiled."

"No insult, my dear, but rather a compliment. You remind me of a Chinese girl because your feet are so small."

And then she threw her arms around him and said he was the sweetest man in the world."

A New Application.

"What's the name of your new book?"

"Looking Backward."

"But that name has been used before."

"Not in the same connection."

"Well, to what does your title refer?"

"To a woman getting off from a street car."—Cleveland Plain Dealer."

He Was It.

"I'd like to see something soft in coats," he said, in the clothing store."

"All right," said the clerk, moving out the looking glass. "Just put this one on."—Yonkers Statesman."

There is a sign in the window of a grocery in Fifty-third street, not far west of Broadway, that is attracting attention. The sign reads this way:

"If you cannot enjoy your breakfast, why not try some of our invalid eggs from the farm?"—Sun."

GOVERNOR SETS THANKSGIVING.

Designates Nov. 30 as Day to Show Gratitude for Favors.

Governor Deneen has issued his first Thanksgiving proclamation as follows: "In conformity with a praiseworthy custom, which has become an unwritten law in our country, and in remembrance of the benefits with which we have been favored by a bountiful Providence, I, Charles S. Deneen, Governor of the State of Illinois, do hereby designate Thursday, Nov. 30, 1905, as a day of public Thanksgiving. The closing days of the year find us surrounded with blessings. The season has been a propitious one. Our fields and mines and factories have yielded bountiful harvests. Our avenues of commerce are glutted with our products. Our people are busy and contented. The public conscience has been quickened and old abuses are being exposed and rectified. Our country is at peace with other nations and has taken the foremost part in establishing peace throughout the world. For these many blessings it is most fitting that we should, with devout hearts, return thanks to Almighty God and humbly resolve that we will do what in us lies to advance the general good. Under our system of free government all depends upon the individual. The good and evil of the republican institutions flow directly from the character of the citizens, and Thanksgiving day should serve to remind us not only of our present blessings, but of our personal responsibilities for the future of our beloved country. I earnestly hope that the people of Illinois, when gathered together for Thanksgiving in their several places of worship and at their firesides, will turn their thoughts for a time to the serious consideration of their obligations as citizens and determine to participate in a larger measure in the administration of the public business and the advancement of the common welfare."

WEALTHY FARMER MISSING.

Police Authorities at Mount Carmel Search for Henry Huffinger.

The police authorities of Mount Carmel have sent out information regarding the disappearance of Henry Huffinger, a wealthy young farmer, who has been missing since the middle of last month. It is feared he is met with foul play. The young man had gone to a village several miles away to make some purchases, but since then has not been seen. A number of small articles were found scattered along the road, indicating he had started on his way back home. There is no clue to his whereabouts. About five weeks ago Clyde Showalter, a young merchant, disappeared from Mount Carmel and nothing has been seen of him since then. When last seen he had considerable money with him and his wife, who has offered a reward of $500 for information leading to his whereabouts, fears he has been murdered for his money and his body thrown into the Wabash River. Both men were well known in southern Illinois."

BIG CLUBHOUSE IS BURNED.

Property of Columbia Club at Fox Lake Is Destroyed.

The Columbia club house, located at Fox Lake, was destroyed by fire. Frank Carlson, the manager, and his guests were eating breakfast when the roof was discovered on fire. Buckets were quickly secured and a fire brigade was organized. The flames had spread beneath the roof and a half hour later the building was in ruins. The club house was one of the largest in the Fox Lake district. It was three stories high, of frame and contained forty rooms. The loss is estimated at $25,000. There is some insurance. It is supposed that sparks from the chimney caused the fire."

ARRESTED ON BIGAMY CHARGE.

Shelbyville Man Accused of Having Two Wives.

Bluford White, foreman of the Legg poultry house in Shelbyville, who was married to Miss Mary Mars a few days ago, was arrested by Chief of Police Pfeifer as he was boarding a train for Paxton. The arrest was made on information of a Madison, Ind., woman, who claims to be White's legal wife, whom he deserted last April. She has two children. The woman in whom White married in Shelbyville is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mars, and is highly respected. She is prostrated over the developments."

TAX INSURANCE COMPANIES.

New Move Decided Upon by Freeport City Council.

The Freeport City Council by a unanimous vote has decided to levy a 2 per cent tax on the gross premiums of foreign insurance companies doing business in that city. The revenue received from this source will be used exclusively for the benefit of the fire department. Sixty-four companies are affected."

PIONEER IS KILLED BY GAS.

Deadly Fumes from Coal Stove Prove Fatal to Aged Man.

William Barrett, aged 82 years, a pioneer farmer residing near Harvard, was asphyxiated by gas from a coal stove, the door of which was thoughtlessly left partly open. His wife was also overcome by the gas and it is thought she cannot live."

FOR LOCAL OPTION IN ILLINOIS.

State Anti-Saloon League Will Plan Fight for Law.

Officers of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois state that Illinois will follow Ohio in fighting the saloon association. The fight will be for local option, and the officers say that a large fund will be raised to work for this bill in the next Legislature."

State News in Brief.

A jury at Joliet acquitted John Gahan, who killed a peacemaker in a quarrel.

Retail dealers in bituminous coal in Bloomington advanced the price 50 cents per ton, due to the reported famine.

Lawrence Shaffer, of the Heading team, was hurt in a recent game of football, his injuries resulting in concussion of the brain.

Frank White, an escaped convict from Joliet, after dodging the police for a year, walked in and surrendered to a sergeant at Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Bridget O'Brien of Chicago, aged 105, went to Rockford the other night and was found dead in bed. Mrs. O'Brien was visiting her old home.

The sum of $100 has been raised by the Jews of Clinton for the Russian sufferers. The Jews of Bloomington have raised $500, which has been forwarded.

Louis Weidman, a player on the Pekin White Sox team, was probably fatally injured in a football game with the Moline team at that place. He is in a hospital suffering with internal injuries.

Applications to organize the First National Bank of Sandoval and the First National Bank of Allendale, each with $25,000 capital, have been approved by the Comptroller of the Currency.

James McNabb, master in chancery, has sold at public auction the 1,300-acre farm of the late Judge John Rivers, twelve miles west of Carrollton, to Ralph Metcalf of Greenfield for $87,000.

Police of the South Chicago station had a desperate struggle with John Hartman, supposed to be demented. The man was finally overpowered and taken to the detention hospital. Hartman became suddenly insane at his home.

The eighteenth child of Mr. and Mrs. George Cassen of Sterling is born. He will be named Theodore Roosevelt Cassen. The seventeenth child, a daughter, was born a year ago and was named after Alice Roosevelt. The mother is 40 years old.

Married thirty-five years, divorced eight months ago, then remarried in the emergency hospital was the romantic experience of Eli Savere and Mary Savere. The aged groom recently was removed to the hospital in Kankakee, seriously ill. His former wife learned of his condition and came from Iroquois to nurse him. The remarriage was planned and carried out at the bedside of the groom.

Bertha Libeke, well known to the police of a score of cities as "Fainting Bertha," shoplifter, pickpocket and all-round crook, was kidnapped from the Illinois Eastern Hospital for the insane in Kankakee by two men, who released the woman from a screenroom and then drove away with her in a buggy. She was committed to the hospital after serving a term in the Joliet penitentiary.

Newton O. Dougherty pleaded not guilty to the charge of embezzling funds of the Peoria school fund. Dougherty's attorneys say they will fight the case to the finish. The prisoner still maintains his nerve and was smiling as he entered the court room from the jail with his counsel. An attempt on the part of the defense to quash the indictments was promptly overruled by Judge Worthington.

A jury has been obtained to try the case of Alexander Downing, son of a wealthy farmer of Cotton Hill, on a charge of wife abandonment. Downing went to Chicago with Miss Laura Smalley, a school teacher, a year ago, and the two were married under assumed names. Downing later denied having been married, but has been identified by Chicagoans as the man who was married to Miss Smalley.

Frank Knight, a youth of Duquoin, was convicted of murder by a jury in the Circuit Court at Pinckneyville. A twenty-five year sentence in the Chester penitentiary was imposed upon him. The crime for which Knight was tried was the killing of Barney Colson, an Italian, in a brawl on the night of Feb. 4. Knight escaped at the time, but was captured shortly after by the local authorities at Seymour, Ind.

The State Board of Equalization has adopted a resolution fixing the basis of qualification of taxes for the year 1905. It provides that the returns on real and personal assessments made to the board by the County Clerks do not exceed 70 per cent of the cash value. There was some opposition to the resolution, but it was finally adopted and it is intended to set the rate for assessment by the board of all classes of property.

A mystery of several weeks, which had aroused great excitement among farmers in the vicinity of Kemper was cleared by the discovery of a turkey buzzard to which were attached sleigh bells. The mysterious noise of the bells had been heard for weeks and could not be accounted for. The other morning, while John and Ode Shields, sons of a farmer, were husking corn in a field north of Kemper, the noise was heard again. Their attention was attracted to a large buzzard flying directly over them. Fastened to the large-winged scavenger were several sleigh bells, which the bird in its flight kept jingling industriously. How the bird came in possession of the bells is a mystery.

Luther M. Dearborn, a well-known Chicago attorney and politician, was found by a policeman at the foot of the steps leading into the house a few minutes before midnight, and died soon after. Apparently he had fallen a victim of heart disease. His skull was fractured. In Mr. Dearborn's pocket was an accident insurance policy for $4,500. On it were notations to the effect that in case of injury friends at his dwelling should be notified. This was taken by the police to indicate that the attorney had feared an attack of some sudden malady. Mr. Dearborn was born in Geneva Aug. 5, 1858. He was educated at Racine College and the Harvard Law School. He began the practice of law in 1884 in Chicago. He served three terms in the Illinois Legislature.

DRUNKEN HIGH SCHOOL BOYS.

Free Distribution of Beer by a Joliet Brewery Involves Students.

The spectacle of drunken high school boys sprawling on the floor between their desks, and being carried home in cabs because they were unable to walk, has stirred the residents of Joliet so that the pastors of all the churches have taken the matter up, a huge temperance revival is planned, and threats are openly heard against the officials of a brewery. A new brewery started in business only a block from the school, and to celebrate the opening advertised a free dinner to all visitors. Many of the high school boys went, and as beer as well as food was free a number libeled freely. Several became so intoxicated that they were unable to go back to school and were sent home in cabs, where their shocked mothers did everything possible to prevent the escape from becoming known in the neighborhood. Two youths who managed to make their way back to school later succumbed to the effects of the beverage and fell to the floor. Others, less seriously affected, behaved themselves in an unbecoming manner. The father of one of the boys seized a revolver and started for the brewery to kill the man responsible for the distribution of the beer. His wife protested but it was only through the aid of Captain H. S. Norton and other neighbors that she could induce him to give up his intention."

ONE IN EVERY 350 INSANE.

Startling Figures for Chicago Presented by Dunning Official.

"One in every 350 of the population of Cook County is insane," declared Dr. V. H. Podstatka, superintendent of the hospital for the insane at Dunning, in a talk on public charities before the Young Men's Club of the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Chicago. "One in every 400 of the population is an inmate of some one of the State institutions for the insane." According to Dr. Podstatka insanity is increasing at the present time, though not as rapidly as it did fifty years ago. "The popular opinion of the laity that a great part of the insane cases are caused by worry, disappointment, overwork and exhaustion is not true," said the speaker. "Statistics prove that 60 per cent of insanity cases are caused by hereditary influences, 22 to 25 per cent from direct influences of alcohol, 10 per cent from organic disease and 5 to 10 per cent are caused by worry, disappointment in business, love and other matters."

QUAIL PLENTIFUL THIS YEAR.

Restrictive Game Laws Tend to Increase Game Supply.

The quail season opened Friday in Illinois and will last until Dec. 20, a period of forty days. The birds are unusually numerous this season throughout central Illinois, and the advance guard of hunters report fine sport. Restrictions placed upon these birds by the game laws in the last few years are having their effect, and the sport at the present time is fine. Hunters report a steadily growing opposition among farmers to trespassing upon farms in search of game, and it is difficult to find fields that are not marked by warning signs or with owners on guard. Prairie chickens are still scarce, although gradually growing more plentiful with each season. Blue bill ducks are more plentiful than usual this year, but mallards and teal are scarce. A few canvasbacks have been shot, but as they are a deep water duck they are not partial to Illinois."

PUTS END TO CHARIVARIS.

Village Board Instructs the Marshal to Arrest Offenders.

Trustees of Barrington, town on the line between Cook and Lake counties, believe that charivaris on the newly married tend to create bachelors and old maids. Acting thereon, the Trustees at a recent meeting adopted a resolution condemning the practice and instructing the marshal to make arrests where necessary to abate the nuisance. Following is the resolution: "Resolved, That the noise, shooting and general disturbance caused by the gathering of crowds for the purpose of serenading or charivaring newly married couples is a nuisance and the marshal is instructed to dispose of all such gatherings, peaceably if possible, and if necessary make arrests and prosecute such disturbers of the peace."

ROAD GIVES UP FIVE-CENT SUIT.

Dismisses Bill Against Jurist After Paying Costs of $50.

The Santa Fe Railroad has given up its suit against Judge Curran of Bloomington for 5 cents, and dismissed the bill after paying costs of $50. The trouble arose because the jurist refused to pay one day's storage charge on a door for a safe which was shipped to him as freight, claiming he received no proper notice of its arrival. The railroad once filed suit in the court of Tazewell County, but after the case had dragged along for a few months decided it would be cheaper to dismiss the suit and pay the costs."

DIPHTHERIA SPREADING FAST.

Illinois Board of Health Reports Many Cases in the State.

Reports to the State Board of Health show a great spread of diphtheria throughout Illinois. A large number of cases are reported in thirty-nine cities and towns in twenty-six counties, ranging from Cook County on the north to Alexander County on the south."

JUSTICE INDICTED FOR MURDER.

N. S. Hahn of Galesburg, Who Slew Tom Trivish, Charged with Murder.

N. S. Hahn, justice of the peace and an influential farmer, who shot and killed Frank Chonokhita because the latter sold his horse to another man, was indicted for murder in the first degree by the grand jury in Galesburg."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Murat Halstead, it is said is writing a history of Tammany. Brief should it be and an obituary, for tammany is on its deathbed.

If New York shall succeed in stopping Boss Murphy's Profession as promptly and successfully as she has stopped "Mrs. Warren's Profession" there will be a great reformation in the political as well as in the theatrical business.

It is stated that the President will recommend interference with the diversion of the Niagara River for industrial purposes. This will be a direct interference with electric light and breakfast food industries.

Eluergide the twenty-seven year old Motorist, in the employ of the department of Commerce and Labor, who was discharged for zigzagging his freight automobile in front of the President's carriage has been reinstated by special order of the President.

Stillings the newly appointed public Printer in Washington must be confirmed by the Senate before his appointment will be complete and it is said the printers union will oppose him and compel the Senators to declare squarely whether they stand for an open or a closed shop.

One of the first things that a traveler in darkest Russia observes is that he is 18 days behind the times. On crossing the frontier into Russia on the 15th of September, his passport is stamped September 5, the morning papers are of that date, in other words, the Russian calendar is different from that of the rest of the civilized world. In the French revolution, France changed her calendar and Russia it is said will, among her first reforms, make her calendar correspond with that of other civilized countries.

And now the race question, with Booker T. Washington, the ever central figure has assumed and international shade, for the Austrian Ambassador calling on the President at the same time that Booker Washington was having an audience, came away wearing B. W.'s over coat. Such things have happened before. Who has not from festive hall missed his proper hat, or even his proper head? Richard Harding Davis it is said, left the winter Palace wearing the crown of the Czar, but it did not sit comfortably on his dome, being three sizes to small and he thrust it away from him and it may now be seen among the imperial brick-a-brack. But the coat fit Baron Hengelmuller and it was a mighty fine coat satin lined. He walked away with it in reverie profound, but in fishing in the pockets for the duty-free, made-in-france gloves which every diplomat has, he is said to have extracted the left hind foot of a rabbit. Then the ambassador realized that he had made a faux paw and he counter-marched, and the polite valet of the presidential ante-chamber swathed him in his own proper coat.

The recent consular order of the President is in line with many reforms instituted by the present administration. It is one of the most important of the reforms yet undertaken. There has been much laudation of our consular system and service emanating chiefly from the service or the servants themselves, but it is not necessary for one to travel in order to know that our consular system is bad, in fact almost the worst of any civilized country. It is only necessary to remember that the appointees are broken down political hacks, political henchmen, forced upon the President by members of Congress or Senators. It has been rare indeed that those sent to Germany, France, Spain Italy and other foreign countries have been able to speak the language of the country to which they are accredited. Added to this, it has been rare that any of them have ever before been outside of the United States, and some of them, no matter how much they might have traveled were men of such inferior minds and culture that they never could have worked themselves free from the ignorance and provincialism imposed by heredity and habit. When it is remembered that these persons in the commercial and social centers to which they are assigned, must, from the necessities of the situation, be compared with and must contend with the well educated, debonair and polyglot representatives sent out by England, Germany France and other countries, it will be realized how heavily we have been handicapped by our so called best consular service in the world.

Fading Hair

Modern London.
London is a shop and a bank, a gambling hell and a cathedral. Its streets are paved with gold and set with thorns. It is a place for a rich man and the place for a poor man. It is all wealth and happiness; it is all poverty and distress. It is a huge paradox. Many things are possible in London that are also impossible. If it so please you, and you possess the ability to do so, you may live merely a double life, but half a dozen different lives, which will never clash with one another. You may be in London at the same time a priest and a plate. It is big enough for both of you.—J. H. M. Abbott in the Spectator.

A liquid cold cure and the only Cough Syrup which moves the bowels—works all cold out of the system—is Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. Clears the head and throat and makes weak lungs strong. Best for croup, whooping cough, etc. Children love it. Sold by J. H. Swan.

LUNAR RAINBOW PRETTY SIGHT.

Writer Tells of One He Saw at Darlington, S. C.

I recall many lunar rainbows during the half century since I was an observant boy, and, if memory serves me, one double lunar rainbow. But the most perfect of these bows that I recall I saw on the edge of Darlington, S. C. I was in a road leading north, with extensive fields east and west, hence my opportunity.

The full moon had just risen above the tops of the distant woods and the bow in the west was perfect. The span of the bow was materially less than the span of a sun rainbow, but its depth, or thickness, was proportionately much greater. The rainbow colors were distinct, but pale, as if the arch were built of pale mother-of-pearl, and they changed and faded less rapidly than the sun rainbows I have seen.

When in camp on John's Island, S. C., I saw a brilliant sun rainbow with one foot of the arch so near we could stand on it, or pass behind and in front of it, but we did not "dig for gold."—Macon correspondence Scientific American.

Honor for Jefferson.
"Waal, yes," said Mrs. Bragley of Jefferson City, "I reckon that feller that writ out the declaration of independence deserved the honor."

"You mean the honor of being assigned to write it?"

"Not at all. I mean the honor o' bein' named for our town. They called him Jefferson, you know."—Philadelphia Press.

NEEDED MATERIAL TO WORK ON.

Inventor Couldn't Guarantee to Perform Possibilities.

The late John Y. Muggridge, a brilliant lawyer of Concord, N. H., while trying a certain case in court is that city, recognized in the witness on the stand a man of great eccentricity from a small adjoining town; in fact, quite a character, although considered mentally unbalanced.

Mr. Muggridge being a great hand at joking, and seeing here a chance to make a little fun for his brother lawyers, with a sly wink in their direction began his examination of the witness.

"Well, my good man," said the lawyer, "what is your name?"
"My name, sir," replied the witness, "is Clough—Dr. Clough."

"Ah," remarked the lawyer, "Dr. Clough—a physician, I presume?"
"No," said the witness, "not a physician exactly."

"Well, then, why are you called doctor?" said the lawyer.

"You see, sir," said the witness, "they call me doctor because I make a kind of salve that when rubbed on the head makes the brain work better."

Here Lawyer Muggridge, who was a man of great size, drew himself up to his full height, and with another wink at his colleagues, pompously remarked to the witness: "And do you mean to tell me, Dr. Clough, that if I should take some of this salve of yours and rub it on my head that it would quicken my intellect?"

"Oh, no, sir! No, sir!" exclaimed the witness; "you have to have some brain to start with."

WHAT IS A GENTLEMAN?

English Courts Say Attorney Is Not and a Coal Agent Is.

The rule under which one has to define his occupation in all kinds of legal transactions in England lands a great many people in difficulties. Quite recently, for instance, a man was told in one of the courts that he was not, as he thought, a "gentleman."

It has been decided that the following are not "gentlemen":

A clerk in the audit office, an attorney, an attorney's clerk, a buyer of silks, a man who solicits orders on commission, a solicitor's clerk out of regular employment, but engaged temporarily making out bills for a firm.

On the other hand, each of the following is a gentleman:

One who has never had an occupation, a sleeping partner who follows the pursuits of a country gentleman; a medical student, who had for a short time acted as a surgeon's assistant, but for six months past had been in no business; a coal agent out of employment; an export clerk engaged collecting accounts, but living chiefly on an allowance from his mother.—Stray Stories.

Plan to Change Inaugural Date.
District Commissioner McFarland of Washington, chairman of the national committee to consider the advisability of changing the date of the ceremony for the inauguration of the President of the United States, has issued a call for a meeting of the committee on Nov. 8. The committee is composed of the governors of all the states and territories and fifteen residents of the District of Columbia.

"SAVED MY LIFE"

—That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From infancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying improper and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. No system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.

We will send you a sample free.
Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

had been taken.

It stops the cough and heals the lungs and prevents serious results from a cold.

Do not take chances on a cold wearing away or experiment with some unknown preparation that costs you the same as Foley's Honey and Tar. Remember the name and get the genuine.

A Severe Cold for Three Months.

The following letter from A. J. Nushbaum, of Batesville, Ind., tells its own story: "I suffered for three months with a severe cold. A druggist prepared me some medicine, and a physician prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I then tried Foley's Honey and Tar, and eight doses cured me."

Three sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00. The 50 cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the small size and the $1.00 bottle almost six times as much.

Work of Wood-Boring Bees.
"The other day I was watching a strong colony of wood-boring bees, which are not leaf-cutters. They were little bigger than grains of rice, but much that they did was very interesting. For instance, when the hole was finished and stored, the bee closed it over with a film something like that which a spider spins. She then brought one by one little crystalline pebbles, which she glued, to the number of about six, in the middle of the film, and just over the hole. I can only imagine that this is done in order to prevent other bees from boring the post just in that spot. In that case, it may either be a positive bar or by way of a notice: 'Please don't dig here.'"—London News.

A Cough Syrup which drives a cold out of the system by acting as a cathartic on the bowels is offered in Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. Clears the throat, strengthens the lungs and croneshals tubes. The mother's friend and the children's favorite. Best for croup, whooping cough, etc. Sold by J. H. Swan.

A Joke on the Doctor.
A Baltimore physician says that recently he boarded a Charles street car that was sadly overcrowded. He soon observed a big German sprawled over an area sufficient to seat two persons at least, while just in front of him stood a poor, wan woman hanging to a strap. Indignant at this exhibition of selfishness on the part of the German, the physician tapped him on the shoulder, saying:

"See here! Why don't you move a little, so that this tired woman may have a seat?" For a moment the German looked dazed. Then a broad smile spread over his countenance as he answered:

"Say, dot's a joke on you, all right! Dot's my wife!"—Harper's Weekly.

Confession Kills Indians.

Of the fifteen long-term Indian prisoners now incarcerated in the United States penitentiary at McNeil's Island, in Puget Sound, twelve who have been there for less than three years are in the last stages of consumption, and none can live more than another year. All are under sentence from ten to twenty years. Warden O. P. Halligan, in discussing the situation, says: "From my experience with the Alaskan Indians and Eskimos doing terms in the institution, I am of the opinion that the majority of both races have hereditary tuberculosis and that the confinement develops it."

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Thanksgiving

Along about Thanksgiving time, when all the leaves are down, and all the fruit's been picked and all the hills are brown, there's something in the air that seems to stir your blood a bit. That makes you glad you're in the world and that you're part of it. The song the wind goes singing in the evergreen's sublimity; there's a glimmer in a man along about Thanksgiving time.

There's something wonderful about the ice so thin and white across the narrow little rut that dried up in the night. It's a crisp-crisp in a hundred ways with streaks and veins and lines, and sparkles out like diamonds when the sun spunks up and shines. And when you break it with your heel you couldn't hardly tell its rattle from the jingle of a little silver bell.

Along about Thanksgiving time it seems somehow, as though the sky was nearer to us than it was a while ago. And when it's clear how clear it is—the crisp, fresh air, I mean—You'd almost think it blew through a sieve somewhere to make it clean. Oh, when it's whistling strong and free, it's nothing but a crime. To not get out and stir, along about Thanksgiving time.

It's almost like a miracle to see the first snow fly. To watch the million little chunks come dartin' from the sky. To hear them bounce against the panes, to watch the wild things, tamed. Go tumblin' down to melt as though they kind of felt ashamed. And when darkness comes and lets the wind go murmuring. It's like the sweet old lullabies our mothers used to sing.

Along about Thanksgiving time there's something in the air that seems to make you brist and strong, that kind of crimps your hair; that you feel all ready for the storms you know you'll have to meet. You're not afraid of anything that's walkin' round on feet. And lookin' at it any way, the old earth's quite sublime. Although it's bare and brown along about Thanksgiving time.

EDIE'S MISSION.

"Susie, to-morrow's Thanksgiving." Lower over her sewing drooped the golden head, and a tear trembled on her eyelash as she answered:

"Yes, darling."

"Aren't we going to have Thanksgiving?" continued the child, "a little bit of a Thanksgiving, Susie? How mean Uncle Ralph is to let you work so hard."

"Tush, Edie! you must not talk thus. Uncle Ralph is very kind in letting us have this cottage rent free, otherwise my needle would not support us."

But little Edie could not help thinking of the great grim house upon the hill, and the great grim man who utterly ignored his poor relation. She thought so long and so intently about it that at last a daring resolution entered her curly head.

"I'll go and see him and tell him all about it, so I will I'm not afraid of him if he is big and grim and cross."

And without pausing to consider the doubtful undertaking, away she went in the direction of the stately mansion dark and gloomy which was the home of the misanthropic uncle, who from being one of the pleasantest of young fellows, in bygone days, had changed this sadly. Rumor said for two reasons—because his betrothed, beautiful Nellie Clyde, had deserted him for her German music teacher, and because his petted, idolized young sister had fallen in love with a poor clerk and married him.

"I will never forgive you, never," he had said to her, sternly, "not because your husband is poor, but because he is selfish."

And she had gone, proudly, with brave trust in her young husband—alas, but to find her brother's words prophetic. The knowledge broke her heart, and she died, and was soon followed by her drunken husband, leaving their two daughters in bitter poverty.

Edie rang the bell of the great house with such violence that it brought the footman in great haste to the door.

"I have come to see my Uncle Ralph," she said, breathlessly. "I suppose he's in his study? Oh, you needn't show me the way; I know it, and she coolly ran by him up the polished stairway—for had not her mother told her of every nook and cranny in the old home?"

At the far end of a gloomy room a fire glowed sleepily, and a gray-haired man sat in an armchair motionless before it. Edie crept in softly.

As she neared him she perceived that his face was very bad and weary looking. Some look upon his face made her think of her dead mother, and almost before she knew it, she had found both her chubby arms about his neck and kissed his cheek.

To say that Ralph Morley was surprised but weakly expresses it; he was thunderstruck, and gazed down in the dimpled little face in mute amazement.

"Edie, little Edie!" he cried; "is it little Edie, a child again, and come back to me?"

"Yes," said the child, clinging about his neck; "I was mamma's little Edie, and I will be yours if you will let me."

Then he comprehended. It was not his own little sister, but it was her child; it was her gentle, loving spirit speaking to him through her. And his hard heart became tender, as he folded the child to his breast and bowed his head upon the soft, fair curls and wept.

Susie wearily wending her way homeward, pondering how best to expend the small change which she dared spare for a Thanksgiving dinner, was overtaken by Karl Schilling, her own true love.

"Oh, Susie!" he cried, breathlessly, "what do you think has happened? Look! here is an invitation to Bleak Hall, from my employer, requesting the presence of my mother and myself at his Thanksgiving dinner to-morrow. What is the world coming to?"

"I'm sure I don't know," smiled Susie. "Uncle Ralph is no doubt beginning to appreciate you, Karl."

"But he was that cross this morning, he resembled an icicle more than anything else. There must be some mistake."

"No," said Susie, gravely; "it is a very kind invitation, and you must accept it."

"Oh, certainly; but how very surprising. What will mother say? Our paths divide here, Susie, so for the present I will say good-night."

His mother surprised! If she was, she betrayed it only by a sudden paleness, then a slight color, and placing her bowed head in her hands she sobbed softly.

"By forgiving my former cruelty and loving me a little, and wearing the pretty things your maid has selected. It will please me to have you wear them."

And when Susie entered the parlor in her lovely trailing blue satin, Edie sprang from her uncle's arms with a little cry of rapture.

"Oh! how beautiful you are, Susie!" The sound of carriage wheels here diverted her attention. "It is Karl!" she cried, running to the window.

Yes, it was Karl, and the surprise he felt upon meeting his betrothed, robed like a princess, in her uncle's parlor, increased when he presented his pale, lovely mother to his employer.

"My mother, Mr. Morley," he began, then paused, for a glance at his employer's white, agitated face; and his mother's downcast and softly-flushed, told him they had met before.

"Nelle! Nelle Clyde!" "Yes," she answered, softly. "Nelle Clyde Schilling, a widow, old and poor, to whom you sent an invitation to a Thanksgiving dinner."

"Nelle!" he repeated, eagerly, "you would not have come to mock me in my solitude and loneliness, unless—unless the past was to be forgotten! Shall it not be as it was, twenty years ago?"

"I did not suppose you would feel thus, at this late day," she said, in confusion. "I only thought we might be friends 'once more.'"

"And so we will," he cried, "the very best friends the world has ever known. Oh, what a Thanksgiving you brought me, little Edie!"—The Heartstone.

A HANDFUL OF TURKEY THOUGHTS.

Better is a dinner of herbs where love is than a stalled ox and hatred therewith. And that applies to the Thanks-

The gobble grows rotund, And so we shout "Hooray!" And hurl our hat

On high thereat And romp and frisk and play, And sigh, by sudden rapture stung; "Alack, a well-a-day!"

While thus we dip Flap o'er the sand And gaily skip

Joy's saraband, We watch him spread his tail As on he proudly struts, And see him puff

And crisp and stuffed With bread and sage and nuts, Till we would on the fork impale His choicest juicy cuts—

While Fancy's breeze Fills us a-sigh With arpeggios

Of golden gle. Oh, bird of rare renown

That makes the eagle look To all intents

Like seven cents, You're greater when the cook, Who knows just how to you browns,

And knows it like a book, Makes you in glee

A roasted dream—A symphonie

Of bliss supreme! Full soon o'er you, blithe fowl, The knife and fork will clash;

And first we'll hold You hot, then cold,

And later in that bash Which whisks the whippers off the scow!

Of sorrow like a flash! While hand in hand We sigh and swoon giving dinner as well as to any other feast. No costly or skillfully prepared viands can make up for the lack of this genial affection and sympathy which we all understand through sympathy, but which is so difficult to describe. While you cannot extemporize this sentiment, you can avoid doing the things that prevent it from having free play. There is a season for everything; and the season for those truthful remarks or justifiable actions that might provoke resentment and ill feeling is not on such a day as Thanksgiving. It is remarkable how much the coldness, indifference or failure to enter into the spirit of an occasion may do to spoil its whole atmosphere and to make the feast a dismal failure. Whatever else you are on these high festivals at home, do not be a "kill joy." Do not suffer your pride or vanity, or even your desire to lead others to adopt courses that you regard as best for them, make you indifferent or unsympathetic to the mood of the hour. There are many occasions and Thanksgiving day is one of them, when our highest duty is not to impose our consciences upon other people, but to contribute to the common stock of happiness and sympathy.—The Watchman.

In fairy-land Beneath the moon.

Somewhat of a Dampener. Mrs. Jimpson—Just see what mother has sent us—a lovely big turkey for our Thanksgiving dinner! It came by express this morning.

Jimpson (joyfully)—Bless her heart! That's just like her!

Mrs. Jimpson—And she sent a note saying she would be here to help us eat it.

Jimpson (not quite so joyfully)—The dickens! That's just like her, too!—New York Times.

Kind of Cows to Keep. I have no particular choice as to the kind of cows to keep. This is a good deal like a man getting a wife—it depends largely on the kind he prefers. ## New Fence Post.

The old-time fence-post has served its purpose for so long that it is about time it was improved. It has always seemed natural that in erecting a fence post a hole should first be dug in the ground and the end of the post inserted in the hole, the remaining space being filled up again. A California man thinks this method antiquated and cumbersome and has invented an exceedingly simple plan, which entirely eliminates this procedure. By the use of his method the initial digging of the hole is entirely unnecessary. The bottom of this post is spiral in shape, similar to an auger, being partly inserted in the ground, is turned round and round until sunk sufficiently deep. To more easily accomplish this a dummy post, with a double-handed lever, which first bores the hole in the ground, can be used. The post shown in the illustration is made of two parts, the top being separated from the base. Along one side of the top portion is a vertical row of prongs, to which an equal number of wires can be attached by clamping the prongs.

SCREWED INTO THE GROUND.

Stacking Alfalfa.

Throughout the western half of the United States alfalfa hay is commonly stored in stacks in the field. Alfalfa stacks will not shed water as readily as stacks of grass hay. In the arid regions there is little danger from rains during the season of storage, but in humid climates it is necessary to store the hay in barns or else cover the stacks with large tarpaulins, or they may be topped with grass. Otherwise the percentage of waste is very large. In any case there is likely to be some waste, for which reason the stacks are made large, thus reducing the proportionate amount of waste. In the alfalfa regions of the West the stacks are as high as the hay can be handled easily and may be 200 feet or more in length. The size of the stacks is then limited chiefly by the convenience in bringing the hay from the surrounding field.

Cheap Potato Pit.

Select slight elevation for position. Dig pit 10 feet long, 5 feet wide and 2½ feet deep. Get three 6-inch poles, 10 feet long; put two, one above the other, at back of pit. Get sixteen 4-foot poles, 6 inches in diameter, and twenty 7-foot poles, 6 inches in diameter, for roof. Make frame for door 2 feet wide and 5 feet high; set in center of front. Put your 4-foot poles, eight on each side, nail through door frame and set two stakes each end to hold poles in position, one above another. Then put your other 10-foot pole on top, resting center on door frame. Notch all 7-foot poles so as to fit each end on front and back; then set up so as to form roof. Nail any old plank on ends. Bank up earth all around and on top. Nail old bags on door to keep frost out. Guaranteed to keep potatoes well through the coldest winter. Will hold 100 bushels.—Henry Klirk.

Kind of Cows to Keep. I have no particular choice as to the kind of cows to keep. This is a good deal like a man getting a wife—it depends largely on the kind he prefers. If you are going to keep cows exclusively for butter, the Jersey, Guernsey and Holstein are desirable breeds. If you are going to take into consideration the value of a calf, which seems quite necessary in our State, the milking strain of the Shorthorn meets the requirements as well as any. The only reliable test for a cow is the amount of butter she produces. If she does not produce 225 pounds of butter fat per year she is not a desirable cow to keep. In building up a herd it is quite necessary to select sires from the best milking strain.—G. L. McKay, Iowa.

A Good Stable Ventilator.

The idea some men have of ventilating stables is to throw open a window directly back of an animal and let the wind blow in; other men open a window about an inch and keep it open ten minutes. Neither plan is ventilation. Animals stabled in warm buildings catch cold readily, so that, having made the stable comfortable for the animals, the next thing to do is to provide for a supply of air, but in such a manner that it will not blow over the animals. If one has box stalls for the horses a window at some distance from them will supply needed ventilation. If the stalls are not so arranged then some opening should be made in the barn if necessary so that the air may enter readily yet not blow directly on the animals. If there is no other way of getting ventilation than through the windows at the rear of the animals then put an attachment to each window to shed the air; a board eight or ten inches wide nailed on a slant over the opening that is made when the window slides to one side will reflect the wind, so to speak, and it will not strike the animals directly. Surely a man of bright wits will find some way of giving his animals ventilation without injury to them if the way suggested does not suit him.

Frost Bitten Combs.

If the trouble is seen before the frost has thawed out, put the bird in a room that will warm up slowly, letting the circulation begin slowly. Avoid a place where the bird can get into the direct sunlight or a room that is much above the freezing point. Even the holding of dry snow against the comb will help remove more slowly the frost of the parts. Having restored the circulation, or noticing the bird after it has thawed out, apply twice a day an ointment of vaseline, six tablespoonsful; glycerin, two tablespoonsful; turpentine, one teaspoonful. This will help start into a healthy condition the blood circulation of comb and wattles and at the same time reduce the swelling.—Dr. Sanborn in Reliable Poultry Remedies.

Vise for Harness, Etc.

In winter months is the time to repair harness. The cut shows a very handy tool to hold your straps while you sew. Take two hardwood staves about 2½ feet long, bore a ¼-inch hole, 10 inches from top end, through both the staves, then put in a bolt ½-inch thick and 5 inches long, and a nut with short handle on. Old coiled spring slipped on the inside, between the two staves, make it to open itself. Lower ends could be hinged together with piece of leather.—F. B. Thor.

Feed Horses Less When Idle.

In an exchange Andrew Stenson sensibly says: The horse not only requires less feed when idle than when at work, but is actually injured if the ration is not reduced on days of idleness. Some feeders of high standing reduce the feed of their work horses on Sundays and holidays, in the belief that even one day's feeding of a working ration while the horse is at rest is injurious. It is now the belief of all who have thoroughly studied the subject that idle horses are fed too heavily as a rule. But no fixed ration can be named, since the food requirements of individual horses differ so widely. Close observation will enable the feeder to adapt the quantity to the needs of each animal.

Avoid Haste in Culling.

Because a ewe is in poor condition and generally ill looking is no reason why she should be culled, for such are usually the best of mothers and are the ones that raise big luscious twin lambs. After her lambs are taken from her she will soon flesh up.

Poultry Pickings.

The smaller the poultry quarters the cleaner they must be kept.

The best breeds will not be profitable if they are mismanaged.

Provide nests where they are handy for hens and handy to gather eggs from.

Poultry is the cheapest and most economical and best meat raised on the farm.

Are you giving your poultry the attention you give the other stock or just allowing it to shift for itself?

Coarse food promotes indigestion and helps to keep the fowls in a healthy condition. Feed as much of it as possible.

Do not simply throw the water out of the drinking vessels and put in fresh water, but wash the vessels thoroughly every time you change the water.

READ AND YOU WILL LEARN!

That the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice endorse and recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "peevish, complaining, torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all short chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their results, as bronchitis, throat and lung diseases (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Hoodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes, that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula on the bottle wrapper is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glass of the published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous or harmful agents and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful ingredient in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. The formula can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

The Wasteful Captain.

She was a fair passenger in search of information and the captain was, naturally, only too willing to gratify her. He had explained that the action of the propeller forced the ship through the water and added, as a further item of information:

"We made twenty knots an hour last night, miss."

"Did you really?" said the sweet girl. "And whatever did you do with them all?"

The captain went red and his eyes dilated.

"Threw them overboard," he said, shortly.

"Fancy!" she said.—Tit-Bits.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and as the tube cannot be seen by a doctor, and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Diagnosis.

"I regret to say," remarked the young physician, "that you have peristaltic neurilemma. The symptoms are unmistakable."

"Dear me!" exclaimed the astonished patient. "What in the world is peristaltic neurilemma, doctor?"

"It is, sir, the disease from which you are suffering," answered the young M. D., haughtily.

Somewhat Similar.

"Women and men are very much alike in one respect," said the home-grown philosopher.

"What's the answer?" queried the inexperienced youth.

"Men," explained the philosophy dispenser, "lie about the fish they didn't catch and women lie about the men they could have married had they wanted to."

DISTRESS AFTER MEALS

Sure Sign That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are Needed to Tone Up the Digestive Organs.

Loss of appetite, distress after eating, shortness of breath, a feeling of utter weakness—these are symptoms that are familiar to most sufferers from stomach trouble. Too often the ordinary doctor's treatment serves but to weaken the diseased organs.

The new tonic method of treating disorders of this kind does not aim to do the work of the stomach, does not demand that the food be pre-digested, but builds up the weakened organs, so that they can do the work that nature intended.

Mrs. E. O. Law, of No. 924 North Street, Horton, Kansas, says: "In 1897, while we were living on a farm in this neighborhood, I became generally debilitated as the result of overwork. I had serious indigestion, lost my appetite, suffered from a sense of suffocation and from obstruction of the circulation, so that artificial means had to be used to restore it. After suffering for months with this feeling any relief I tried a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills of which I had read in a newspaper. The first few boxes made me feel better, and after using the third box I felt entirely well."

"I am now in excellent health and am able not only to take care of my house but also to assist my husband in a store which he has lately taken. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured me and I can recommend them. They are so simple, so easily taken and so prompt in their action."

Remember Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not act on the bowels. They make new blood and restore shattered nerves. In this way they carry health and vigor to every organ and fiber of the body. They are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of ten cents per box; six boxes for $5.00 by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Rioting Over Peace Treaties.
The riotous scenes at Tokio were not by any means the first demonstration of their kind against an unpopular treaty. In fact, a reasonable parallel may be found in events that took place not more than seven blocks from the site of the Evening Post building.

On July 18, 1795, a mass meeting was called to protest against the treaty which Jay had just negotiated with England. While the speaking was under way an enthusiastic band, who had been burning the treaty at the Battery, came marching up Broadway, headed by the French and American flags, and joined the crowd.

At about the same time Alexander Hamilton addresses the meeting in favor of adjournment. Stones were thrown at him from the now turbulent crowd, and one of them struck him on the forehead.—New York Evening Post.

Every ounce of food you eat that fails to digest does a pound of harm. It turns the entire meal into poison. This not only deprives the blood of the necessary tissue-building material, but it poisons it. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a perfect digestant. It digests the food regardless of the condition of the stomach. It allows that organ to rest and get strong again. Relieves belching, heart burn, sour stomach, indigestion, palpitation of the heart, etc. Sold by J. H. Swan

The Happy Igorrote.

See the Igorrote. You do not have to look through any opaque sartorial adornments to see him. He is visible to the naked eye. The Igorrote is a very happy individual. He ought to be happy. He does not have to pay two bits every four days to get his pants creased. In that way he saves $22.75 per annum. When he has saved up for forty years he can buy an automobile on time payments. He also economizes by not buying pocket knives, because he has no pocket in which to put the knives. But the Igorrote never worries about not owning an auto. His motto is "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." He lives the simple life. All he requires is his pipe and his pup. He smokes his pipe and bolts his pup, and he is not particular about the pedigree of the pup. If you or I ate pup we would insist upon well-bred poodle or dainty water spaniel. To the Igorrote a dog with any other name will taste as sweet. His only requirement is that it be dog.—Portland Oregonian.

Son Lost Mother.

A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world." Sold by J. H. Swan.

Recovery of Lost Treasure.

In his article on "Deep Sea Diving," The Technical World Magazine, Robert Shackleton says:

It was but a few years ago that a ship with a quarter of a million dollars in gold was sunk not far from Shanghai and that divers were sent to the spot to recover the treasure. The ship lay at the depth of 160 feet, making it a work of extreme difficulty and hazard, but day after day the divers labored, taking up box after box through which the seaworms had already bored their tiny holes, until four-fifths of the gold was recovered. Then, one day, a fleet of pirate junks bore down upon them and it was only by the exertion of the most tremendous efforts that the party escaped with what they had already recovered. And afterward they returned and completed the job and took out the very last box of gold! Truly, the age of romance is still with us.

"I Thank the Lord"

Danger to Pneumatic Tires.

Life and elasticity are taken out of a pneumatic tire if it is exposed to the sun too much.

Nature needs only a Little Early Riser now and then to keep the bowels clean, the liver active, and the system free from bile, headaches, constipation, etc. The famous little pills "Early Risers" are pleasant in effect and perfect in action. They never gripe or sicken, but tone and strengthen the liver and kidneys. Sold by J. H. Swan.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century, discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Blenheim, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and all good druggists.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Blenheim, N. Y., on every bottle.
